Al Zulfikar head killed, cell busted, Pakistan says

ISLAMABAD, Nov. 22 (R) - Pakistani authorities have smashed a guerrilla cell which planned a campaign of sabotage and assassinations to hring down the country's military government, police sources said

JEDDAH 22774 6523484

DAMMAN 8324113

The cell was part of a Kahul-based organization of Pakistani dissidents known as Al-Zulfikar. The authorities say two sons of executed Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto are leaders of the group.

The sources said the breakthrough earne on Friday when police raided a flat in Karaehi and during a gunhattle the cell's leader, Lala Asad, an engineering student in his 20's, was killed. Two members were arrested.

Four more men were detained Sonday in Economic issues stressed > spending, the immigration of skilled labor. the rise in imports, and the inefficiencies of the state-owned industries - discussed a national dialogue. The Egyptian leader also called for a rethinking of the country's seven-year-old 'open-door' economic policy, which he said had tended to focus on the importation of housing, subsidies, extravagance in public consumer and luxury goods. Mobarak said it was time to develop a "productive open-door," to turn foreign and domestic investment to industry and productioo. In his statement Sunday, Mohiedin said any project approved from now on under the liberal investment laws drawn up in 1974 had to be "aimed at producing the needs and services of most of the people, and oot luxury goods whose use is restricted to a minority." Mohiedin also said Egypt should start producing many of the goods it currently imports to create more jobs to meet the demands of the ever increasing population of 42 million. He said the seveo problems outlined by Muharak had their political and social ramifications as well as the obvious economic ones; the government; be said, woold give these issues top priority to reach "radical solutions," and he : We stree suggestions to be discussed in the dialogue the president had proposed.

e said one way to control over consumption of luxury goods was to increase taxes. As for the immigration of skilled labor, be said banning immigration was not a solution because workers' remittances from abroad were a main source of income for the country, totalling five times Egypt's earnings from the sale of cotton. He gave no figures. Mohiedin also outlined the government's achievements over the past year in various raids on three parts of Karachi and a quantity of subversive literature, photographs and a police uniform were seized, police sources An arrest warrant was also issued for Qaim

Ali Shah, a former minister for industries in the eivilian Bhutto government.

Security measures at Karachi airport and other installations have been increased as more members of the cell may still he at large, the sources said.

The sources said extra precautions had also heen ordered for Turkish head of state Gen. Kenan Evren who was arriving Sunday for a six-day visit.

Immigration ufficers at airports and on the borders with Iran and Afghanistan had been alerted to watch for suspects fleeing the country, the sources added.

Authorities have linked the cell to a number of violent incidents: A homb blast during Pope John Paul's visit to Karachi last February: the hijacking of a Pakistani airliner to Kabul and Damascus in March; the suspected arson of a Pakistani DC-10 airliner at Karachi in January; the assassination of leading politician Chaudhry Zahur Elahi in September: several train derailments; and to shooting incidents at universities.

Police had been on the alert for more attacks since learning that a highly-trained six-man cell had secretly entered Pakistan from neighboring Afghanistan.

The two men arrested in the Karachi gunbattle have told police the cell had a death list of nine prominent people including politicians who contributed to Bhutto's downfall, a federal minister, an ednor and an author, the sources said.

FEZ, Nov. 22 (AFP) - Arah foreign ministers, meeting here to prepare for the Arah League summit later this week, Sunday urged Arah states in forget their differences in order to promote regional peace and a united front against their "enemies."

Speaking at the ministerial meeting's inaugural session Sunday. Arah League Secretary General Chadli Klibi warned the European Economic Community that participation in the Sinai peace-keeping force could jeopardize its Middle East peace initiatives.

Delegates from the 21 Arah League countries are meeting in this central Moroccan city tn prepare the agenda for the 12th Arah summit conference, which opens here Wed-

They are to focus Monday on the eight-point Saudi Arahian peace plan for the Middle East, which is expected to be a leading item on the agenda, Lehanese Foreign Minister Fund Bourros, the current Arah League ehairman, opened Sunday's session. He said any just or lasting settlement in the Middle East was not possible without first returning peace to Lehanon. He said he was pleased that the Lehanese crisis was given priority on the summit agenda, and stressed that Arah states must work together to end such conflicts and recover Palestinian rights and occupied Arab territories.

Moroccan Foreign Minister Muhammad Boucetta, whom Boutros proposed to chair the preparatory conference, said the Arab nation hoped "to see the Fez summit draw up a common Arah strategy to meet the challenge of our enemies.

Klihi also criticized the proposed strategic alliance between the U.S. and Israel and called it a "grave threat to peace." The delegates later continued their talks in a closed-door session. Earlier Saturday, Saudi Arahia formally asked the Arah League secretariat to put Riyadh's eight-point plan on the agenda for the summit, conference sources said. The plan calls for Israeli withdrawal to its pre-1967 borders and the creation of a Palestrniau state. Conference sources said a formal Saudi Arahian ducument distributed to delegations here described the plan as hased on the resolutions of previous Arah summits and said it should be considered the hasis for a just and emprehensive solution to the Palestinian question. The sources said the Saudi Arahian delegation had asked for the plan be put under the "Palestine question" elause of an already drafted preliminary agenda. They are due to finalize an agenda for the heads of state at the ensuing summit. Libyan leader Muammar Oaddafi announced last week that he would not attend the summit, but his foreign liaison secretary (minister) Abdul-Ati Obeidi was among delegates arriving Saturday, the Moroccan news agency MAP reported, BONN, Nov. 22 (Ageocies) - Soviet President Leonid Brezhoev arrived here Sunday on his first trip to the West since Moscow's occupation of Afghanistao for a state visit amid anti-Soviet demonstrations. Brezhnev's visit was also overshadowed by forthcoming East-West arus lains.

Strict security measures were in effect around the West German capital at the Cologne-Bonn Airport when Brezhoev arrived at the head of a large delegation, also including Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

A formal greeting with full military hunnrs was scheduled for Monday morning at the chancellery just before the first round of talks with Chancellur Helmut Schmidt.

Some 5,000 police were to protect the Kremlin leader, and officials ordered about 20 Afghan and other refugees to stay at home until Brezhnev's departure Wednesday.

The visit, which followed a trip to Moscow hy Schmidt in June 1980, has takeo on new importance in light of the burgeoning West European peace movement and oext week's U.S.-Soviet talks in Geneva on reducing medium range ouclear missiles in Europe.

U.S. has qnoted Reagan as saying last Thursday he would prefer to see Jerusalem" united under Israeli sovereignty."

Kuwaiti Cahinet Secretary Abdul Aziz

He called them "contradictory" to others hy the Americao government, considered all areas occupied in 1967 as actually occupied territories that Israel must evacuate. He said this was the reason why the United States did not move its embassy from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem after the Israeli Parliament passed a law declaring unified Jerusalem the eapital

Hussein said he hoped the statements "were made under the influence of representatives of the Zionist movement," apparently indicating a wish that the statements did not reflect official U.S. policy.

In Moscow, the Soviet Communist Party newspaper Pravda described the Brezhnev visit as one of "considerable importance" for the security in Europe, although Soviet media have sharply criticized Reagan's nuclear missiles proposal as a propaganda trick.

At a separate rally ealled by liberal and conservative West German politicians, a crowd estimated by organizers at about 40,000 was told by exiled Soviet dissident Vladimir Bukovsky; "Whatever Soviet propaganda says, we know where the real danger to peace comes from."

The turnout was only a fraction of the 250,000 mustered by West Germany's "peace movement" last month to protest against NATO plans to deploy new U.S. medium-range nuclear missiles in West Germany. A similar rally in Amsterdam Saturday drew 350,000 protesters.

About 12,000 supporters of the "Greens" ecologist movement demonstrated for a nuclear-free zone in Europe while 4,000 pro-Soviet Marxists marched in west Boun chanting "What Hitler did not achieve. Schmidt is doing with NATO power."

Marchais favors France's lead in supporting Fahd plan

BEIRUT, Nov. 22 (R) - French Communist Party Leader Georges Marchais suggested in an interview published Sunday that France should take a lead in hacking Saudi Arabia's plan for a Middle East settle-

Marchais told the Beirut weekly magazine Monday Morning that the Freoch government could, as a first step, sponsor a resolution at the U.N. Sarkis sees no early solution in Lebanon sident Elias Sarkis has said that the solution of the six-year-old Lebanese problem was not imminent and that Lebanon did not alone hold the keys to such a solution.

In a nationwide address Saturday marking the 38th anniversay of independence from France, Sarkis said his government had responded to mediation efforts by Arab and other countries" But we still are at a distance from a fair and just settlement that would restore security, welfare and stability."

Sarkis' six-year tenure expires in September 1982. He was elected in May 1976, at the heights of the two-year civil war in which Lebanese right-wing parties fought against an alliance of Lebanese leftist and Palestinian forces.

N.,S.Yemen presidents set for talks

KUWAIT, Nov. 22 (R) - The presidents of North and South Yemen meet in Kuwait Monday for the second time in less than 10 weeks in an apparent effort to resolve political disagreements hetween their two countries, strategically located at the entrance to the Red Sea.

A spokesman of the South Yemen Embassy told Reuters the talks would be held at the invitation of the ruler of Kuwait, Sheikh Jaher Al-Ahmad Al-Sabah, who helped the two countries reach a merger accord after a brief border war in

The two leaders, President Ali Nasser Muhammad of South Yemen and President Ali Abdullah Saleh of the North, last met in North Yemen on Sept. 15 amid reports of renewed fighting.

The proposed merger foundered over ideological and political differences. Their relations further cooled after South Yemen signed a pro-Soviet friendship treaty with Ethiopia and Libya in August.

HABIB'S SHUTTLE

Philip Habib is said be missing us badly. He is eagerly waiting for the outcome of the Arab summit in Fez so that he can-start once more on his diplomatic shuttle. From our side, the feeling is perhaps less than mutual (but he will be a givest after all, so the point ought not to be labored). The Israelis, on the other hand, cannot contain their enthusiasm for his visit. And this is not so much because Habib is coming to displace Israel's first and final 'Habib" Henry Kissinger, but because of the opportunity his visit will afford: for Israel has just been looking into its old records and has come up with the idea that some mileage can still be squeezed from the issue of the Syrian SAM batteries stationed in the Bekaa Valley in Lebanon, as well as from the claim that the Palestinians are receiving heavy armaments.

The Israelis are forced to revive yesterday's crises because they have no way of facing the real crisis engulfing them, which is the catastrophic erosion of their political position internationally - and especially within the United States. This latter is reported to have counseled 'moderation' as the Israelis began to mobilize near the Lebanese borders. But there was no report that this advice said anything specific regarding the Syrian SAM's ... Does this mean that the South of Lebanon is to be spared while the Bekaa is to be hit? Such issues, it is certain, will be taken up as Israel's war minister Sharon visits Washington toward the end of this month to advance the cause of 'strategic cooperation' with the Americans. We shall know more of Israel's intentions by then.

Saudi Arabian press review

Sunday's newspapers commented on the preparatory meeting of the Arab foreign ministers in Fez Sunday and the opening of new vistas of peace in the region through the growing support for Crown Prince Fahd's eight-point Middle East plan.

Dealing with the Kingdom's peace plan, Al -Riyadh said, "The proposals are not merely a formula representing ideas and principles that satisfy the Arah nation, hut their significance stems from being a unique Arah initiative, which is not based on either Eastern or Western influences.

The paper hoped the preparatory meeting will give prime concern to the Kingdom's peace plan for realizing peace and security in the region. "The Saudi Arabian plan is presented at a time when the Camp David accord is deadlocked. As such, the present crucial time is posing a great danger to the prime Arah issue, namely the Palestinian cause, The Kingdom has presented the plan to counter the enemy's design to usurp the Palestinian rights under the disguise of the so-called autonomy propagated by Israel," the paper added.

Al -Bilad said the Arah foreign ministers will deal with the important task of handling the Arah developments at a very crucial stage while discussing the agenda of Wednesday's 12 Arab heads of state summit.

"The foreign ministers' discussion of the Saudi Arabian peace plan will symbolize the Arab states' desire for peace and security in the region," it said.

Al -Madinak and Okaz denounced the Iranian regime's allegations against the Kingdom and its peace plan, saying they emanate from ignorance and jealousy.

Al -Madinah likened the campaigns of the Khomeini regime to those of the Zionist leaders' propaganda to insult Saudi Arabia and its noble people.

Khomeini and his hypocratic gang of murderers are copying the rotten Jewish thought and hostile campaigns against the Kingdom and its leaders," the paper said.

"The Kingdom's peace plan supported by Yasser Arafat and leaders and people of the occupied Arah lands can be the only hasis for realizing the Palestinian people's aspirations and not the Khomeini gang's suspicious relations with Israel," Al-Madinah

Okaz described Khomeini and murderers, and the anti-Islam continues indefinitely. Khomeini regime," it added.

The emergence of Saudi Arabia as the author of a vigorous and constructive peace plan for the Middle East has been enormously encouraging to European supporters of the rights of the Palestinians. Now, with the Sandis and the European Community in broad agreement over the course to pursue, there appears to be the best chance for many years of achieving a settlement which would rescue the Palestinians from the long nightmare of occupation.

Having said this, one must go on to say that the obstacles facing this Euro-Arab initiative are-formidable. The attitude toward it of the United States government is hesitant and uncertain; and the Israelis, who have denounced it with almost hysterical vehemence, can be counted on to do everything in their power to persuade the Americans to oppose it. Already one can see this happening. Israeli Prime Minister Begin and his ministers have publicly attacked Saudi Arabia and the British Foreign Secretary, Lord Carrington, who in his capacity as president of the European council of foreign ministers has supported the plan and engaged in lengthy discussions with the Saudi Arabian government on how to proceed with it.

The immediate obstacle that has to be overcome, then, is this combination of American indecision and Israeli hostility. To achieve this will not be easy. Israel's hold over American policy-making is wellknown and it is assisted in this case by the fact that the Americans seem to have no clear ideas of what they want to happen in the Middle East. Bin, as the story of the sale of AWACS aircraft to Saudi Arahia shows, there are limits to the power of the Zionist lobby in the United States.

With Begin personally setting the pace, the lobby made an all-ont effort to stop the AWACS sale; but its effort was unsuccessful, though only just. So the Saudis need not necessarily despair of winning American approval for their peace plan, provided they can show that it has sufficiently wide support elsewhere. And this is the crucial part of the

To achieve success, the Saudi Arabian plan will need to have the support of at least a majority of the Arab states and of the PLO. If the Arab summit meeting in Morocco later this month rejects the plan, it will be stillborn. And if the PLO refuses to give a conditional undertaking to recognize Israel (in exchange for a parallel undertaking by the Israelis to recognize the national rights of the Palestinians), this will provide the Israeli government and the Zionist lobby in America with exactly the weapon they need to force the United States to oppose the plan.

Clearly this calls for some very hard thinking on the part of the Arab leaders before the summit meeting takes what may be one of the most farreaching decisions ever to confront the Arab World. What they will have to do, in effect, is to choose between two quite clear-cut alternatives. Either they can support the Euro-Arah initiative hased on the Saudi Arabian plan, in which case they will be joining in the attempt to establish a Palestinian state in the West Bank and Gaza, which would live alongside and coexist with Israel (within its 1967 borders). Or, hy rejecting this initiative, they can leave things as they are, with Israel in control of the whole of Palestine including Arab Jerusalem and with no prospect for the Palestinians of achieving in the foreseeable future anything more than the very limited antomony under Israeli rule which is the declared aim of the Camp David process - and which the Palestinians have firmly rejected.

Of course there is no guarantee that if the Arabs his gang as "anti-Islam". "The support the Saudi plan, the Palestinians will get provocations of the Khomeini reg. their independent state. There will be much to be ime against the Kingdom, its done before that is achieved. But what one can say peace plan and Yasser Arafat pro- with certainty is that, if the Arabs do not support the vide a proof of the Iranian leaders' Saudi plan, they will be postponing for a very long foolish and irrational approach." time any chance of establishing an independent "The Iranian people, who Palestinian state. They will in fact be giving a helpaspired to establish an Islamic rule ing hand to the Camp David process; and they will in Iran, are now faced with be ensuring that the Israeli occupation of the West hloodthirsty men, professional Bank and Gaza — and of the Golan Heights —

It is important to be clear-sighted about this. No

Arabs to accept the existence of Israel and the idea of negotiating with the Israelis. Nor am I under the illusion that acceptance of the Saudi plan will swiftly restore to the Palestinians their independence in even a part of Palestine. But if the price of refusing even to consider the Saudi plan, and giving it a chance of success, is to perpetuate the Israeli occupation of the West bank, is not that price too high? Must it not seem too high to the Palestinians living in the West Bank and struggling day after day and year after-year to maintain their-precarious hold on -their land in the face of Israeli repression and

Let us look into the future and consider the consequences of the decision which the Arab leaders will shortly have to take. If the summit meeting this month decides to support the Saudi plan, which already has the backing of the European Community, it will undermine the only valid argument which the Israelis have for refusing to accept a peaceful . we are and in maintaining our occupation of the deny Israel the opportunity to live in peace. It willconfront the American government with a choice between supporting Israel against the combined will of the Arab world, whose cooperation the Americans seek, and of the Europeans, who are their closest allies. It will expose the hollowness of the arguments of the pro-Israeli lobby when it claims only to seek peace security for Israel. And if the summit meeting turns down the Saudi plan, exactly the opposite will happen. Israel's supporters will be able to say to the Americans, "You see, we told you so; the Arabs cannot hring themselves to accept our right to distribute only want to destroy us. All this talk of supporting the rights of the Palestinians is... just talk. Far when they are offered a plan which might give the Palestinians their independence, they turn it down because. it would mean conceding independence to the Israelis as well. So you must support us in staying where Arabs are too divided to do anything to make life uncomfortable for you."

And Lord Carrington and the Europeans, who have taken some risks in adopting a position which brings them into conflict with the Americans and which is unpopular with important sections of public opinion in their own countries, will have to give up their attempt to devise a solution which would give substance to the rights of the Palestinians. And I suppose they would say: "Well, we did our best, we took ou the Israelis and the Americans and we did not give up when they attacked us and misrepresented our motives. But if the Arabs are against us too and think they have a better way of achieving a settlement which does something for the Palestinians, well, good luck to them. They are on their own account on the course, well, good luck to them. They are on their own account on the large of the course, will be delighted.

Civil war threat hangs over Ulster unremarkable eriough at first sight. He says his

By Patrick Bishop

LONDON -The security forces in Northern Ireland are steeling themselves for Monday's (Nov. 23) planned demonstration of loyalist strength which they fear could edge the province further toward civil war. Ian Paisley, leader of the Protestant hard-liners, has promised to render Ulster "ungovernable" in protest against London's plans to achieve a settlement in the North through strengthened links with the Irish Republic. Similar threats have been uttered in the past hy Paisley, charismatic leader of the Democratic Unionist Party, bin have turned out to he non-events.

This time, though, the government is wisely taking him seriously, and both the prime minister, Margaret Thatcher, and the secretary of state for Northern Ireland, James Prior, have issued appeals to stay calm and avoid violence.

Protestant fury at IRA killings and the apparent failure of the security forces to prevent them is at its highest pitch for years as a result of the killing last week of the Rev. Robert Bradford, member of parliament for the Protestant Official Unionist Party and a close friend of Paisley. IRA gunmen disguised as workers tricked their way into a community center in Belfast where he was bolding an advice "clinic" and shot him dead while 60 children screamed in horror in an adjoining room.

That was only the latest in a series of assassinations begun after the failure of the H-block hunger strike which ended on Oct. 10 without any real concessions to the Republican prisoners. The killing marked a sinister new development in the pattern of political violence in the North: Bradford was the first MP to be assassinated since the present spate of trouble began 11 years ago. In recent months the IRA had tended to pick targets from the ranks of off-duty policemen and members of the part-time Ulster Defense Regiment. In the week before Bradford's killing every day was marked by an attack on security forces personnel. In one particularly horrific incident a teenage boy was mistakenly hlasted to death hy a bomh when he was moving his father's car. Most of the Protestant anger is directed not at the IRA, however, but at the British government. Most lovalists feel the gunmen are carrying on virtually unhampered because the army and the police are frightened of attracting bad publicity by taking a tough line with the Catholic communities that harbor the terrorists. The loyalists' claims are exaggerated, but it is nonetheless true that the security forces are more sensitive to accusations of brutality now than they were a few years ago.

Protestant bitterness toward Britain is reinforced by strong suspicion that Thatcher bas secretly washed her hands of Northern Ireland and has accepted the long-term inevitability of the Republican cause.

Despite the repeated protestations of both sides in the recent Anglo-Irish summit that their new friendship is entirely innocent, Paisley has interpreted it as proof that Thatcher is planning to sell the province out to its "enemies" in the South. Paisley's threatened action for Monday looks to a halt by refusing to cooperate with the council officials. But it will have the effect of raising the temperature in a climate that is already throughing with latent violence; Early on the morning after Bradford was shot, man in the Short Strand area of Belfast. In loyalists retaliated by murdering a young Catholic Enniskillen, in the beleaguered border county of Fermanagh where many Protestants have murdered in recent months, loyalists announced the formation of a "third force" vigilante group and paraded through the streets in paramilitary

There is no doubt that a violent Protestant backlasb would suit the purposes of the IRA very well by driving the Catholic population further into its Paisley has said that the Catholics have nothing to fear from his demonstration. If it does indeed paralyze the province it may well also paralyze the progress that has been made in the Anglo-Irish talks, which have so far given birth to an Inter-Governmental Anglo-Irish Council, with a parliamentary wing planned for later. Such a failure would please extremists on both sides.

Paisley bas a precedent to take encouragement from: in 1974 a massive strike by Protestant workers killed plans for a Northern Ireland Council which would have given Catholics a fair share in the running of the province. (ONS)

U.S. arming of Pakistan worries India

NEW DELHI -The United States proposal to sell 40 F-16 fighter jets to Pakistan has raised the specter of an arms race in the subcontinent. The Reagan administration argues that the sale was made necessary by the 1979 Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan.

For almost 200 years the West had seen Afghanistan, bordering Pakistan, as a buffer to possible Soviet expansion to the subcontinent. Two American congressional committees this week rejected opposition to the proposed sale, which now seems likely to go ahead, giving President Reagan a.

foreign policy victory. Apart from the $1.1 billion deal involving the F-16s, the U.S. also wants to sell Pakistan other military equipment.

India views the proposed American arming of its neighbor as a security threat and as a shift in the balance of power in South Asia. India and Pakistan have fought three wars since the subcontinent was partitioned in 1947 on achieving independence

Although the Indian Air Force is vastly superior in numbers to Pakistan - 614 combat aircraft against 220 according to the International Institute for Strategic Studies - the F-16S are seen in New Delhi as introducing a new generation of technology into the region.

Indian analysts are scornful of the Reagan administration's argument that the aircraft will help Pakistan to protect itself against the Soviet Union. "It is ridiculous to suggest that Pakistan can defend itself against Russian troops, should the latter wish to take it on - an unlikely prospect," said one veteran commentator on foreign affairs.

Analysts acknowledge that the arms supply is conditioned by U.S. national interests. Bin they also note that Pakistan is a close neighbor under military rule and believed to be still smarting from its defest in the 1971 war when it lost East Pakistan, now Bangladesh.

Relations with Pakistan have improved significactly since the war hut very few Indians, remembering recent history, feel comfortable at the thought that Pakistan might soon have a stronger air force. This, rather than the broader issues of Indo-Pakistan relations and superpower involvement in the subcontinent, is the emotional issue in India.

A Pakistan offer to India, never formally made, of a" no war pact" has been shrugged off by influential figures as a ploy. India has made similar offers in .

the past but these have never been accepted. Apparently looking for ways to counter the supposed threat to India's security, Prime Minister Indira Gandhi discussed in France this mooth the possible purchase of the latest French combat aircraft, the Mirage 2000. Negotiations have been going on for some time hut nothing has yet been settled. The Soviet Union remains India's main supplier, however. India acquired MiG-23s under a $1.6 billion deal signed in May last year and has also received some high-performance MiG-25 reconnaissance "Foxbaf" planes. The two countries signed a 20-year friendship treaty in 1971 before the war over Bangladesh at a time when the U.S. was tilting toward Pakistan.

Present Indo: U.S. relations have also been aggravated by bilateral issues including a nuclear fuel supply agreement which appears likely to be abrogated. The new American ambassador to Delhi, Harry Barnes, remarked on presenting his credentials this week. "There is much to be done — to forge a firmer base for the relations between the United States and India."

Both sides will try to clarify their positions when Secretary of State Alexander Haig visits India about the middle of December. (R)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22 (Agencies) — White House National Security Adviser Richard Allen said Saturday he did nothing wroog in accepting two watches as a gift from a Japanese frieod. Allen is being investigated by the Justice Department for accepting $1,000 from a Japanese magazine which interviewed President Ronald Reagan's wife, Nancy, last Jan. 21.

Allen, in a statement issued by the White House, said he accepted the watches as a personal gift from Japanese businessman Tamotsu Takase and his wife, who are old friends. He said the gift was made before Jan. 20, the day the Reagan administration took office.

NEW DELHI, Nov. 22 (AFP) — Two bomb attacks Saturday left one dead and four injured seriously in India's troubled Assam state on the northeastern frontier.

Reports from the area said that unidentified assailants threw a powerful bomb at a private house in the state capital of Gauhati, killing a woman and seriously injuring two persons. The home belonged to the hrother of a state legislator from Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's Congress Party.

"Two ladies' watches were given and accepted as a personal gift for my wife from a friend off many years standing," Allen said in the statement. He said he took the $1,000 to avoid embarrassing the magazine and its staff and pot the money in a White House safe. He then forgot about it notil it was found in September, he said.

Allen has so far appeared to take the affair in his stride. Each day as he leaves his home, and later as he arrives at the White House, be greets waiting journalists pleasantly. But newsmen are far from satisfied with the incomplete answers be has provided on his past and present relations with Japanese industry, and his contacts with the Justice Department.

It was not Allen's first run-in of the sort. As the Reagan team took office, Allen found himself accused by the Wall Street Journal of improper links with Japan under the Nixon administration, when he held a post on the National Security Council under Henry Kissinger. But the top presidential aide, Edwin Meese, absolved him of any guilt.

Meanwhile, The Washington Post reported that Allen had continued to meet former Japanese consultancy elients regularly at his White House office. Two of the elients involved represented major Japanese automobile manufacturers, the newspaper said. Allen, however, bas said he withdrew last spring from all official talks over the issue of Japanese car imports.

China warns girls against alien partners

PEKING, Nov. 22 (AFP) — Marriage with a foreigner "often brings tragedy and damages the dignity of the nation and the individual," the Sbaoghaí Jiefang Riboo (Daily Liberty) warned its women readers

Under the headline "Beware, Young Women," the newspaper said many Chinese girls were "poisoned" by the material advantages of marrying a foreigner and going to live abroad. It noted that in 13 out of 23 such marriages contracted in the Shanghai district last year the Chinese spouse had immediately applied for a visa to leave the country.

"We are not against marriages between Chinese and foreigners that are based on reciprocal love, and indeed Chinese law permits this type of normal marriage with a foreigner," the newspapewr said. But it warned that the Chinese wife ran the risk of being "cruely deserted" sooner or later, or even of being "thrown out" with no possibility of appeal by the alien partner.

The newspaper gave the cautionary example of a Hong Kong Chinese who had come to Shanghai to find a wife — though the man was already married and bad two children.

The newspaper's warning was addressed specifically to women, no mention being made of Chinese males who took a foreign bride.

Hundreds said killed in Uganda jails

LONDON, Nov. 22 (AP) — Hundreds of prisocers have been tortured and murdered in "death bouses" and detention centers in the Ugandan capital of Kampala since President Milton Obote was officially returned to power in December 1980, according to eyewitnesses and Western diplomatic sources.

Red Cross officials in Uganda estimate at least 2,000 political prisoners have been held in prisons, military barracks and other detention centers run by government security organizations in the past 10 months.

It is impossible to make an accorate count of the number of prisoners killed while in detection, but one man who escaped said "five or six persons were taken nightly for execution" during the five months he was held prisoner in Makindye military barracks in Kampala.

Obote, who spent nine years in exile after being overthrown by Idi Amin in 1971, returned a year after Amin was ousted by Tanzanian troops and Ugandan exile force in April 1979. He was re-elected president in the December 1980 election.

Obote defends his government's record on burnan rights, and in a speech in mid-October in Uganda denounced as "baseless and untrue" reports that opponents of his regime were being imprisoned and killed.

The escapee from Makindye military barraeks and four others who either escaped or were released from the detention centers were interviewed inside Uganda and in neighboring Kenya. They declined to be identified for fear of their own safety and the safety of their families in Uganda.

They said they were beaten and whipped by Uganda soldiers and saw other prisoners being bayoneted, hurned and shot. "They would bayonet people in the stomach or chest and force you to talk," the escapee, who is member of the opposition Uganda Patriotic Movement, said last week in Nairobi. "They would shoot at the ankles or at the knees just to leave you in pain."

"There were about 20 of them," said the woman, whose arm was in a plaster cast," and any of them passing by would just heat you if they wanted." She said synthetic clotb was placed on prisoners, set alight and allowed to melt onto their skin.

Western diplomatic sources in Kampala said the detention centers, which they describe as "death houses," include two houses and an officers' mess in the Kampala residential areas of Nagesero and Kolok.

Budget reform poses challenge to EEC

BRUSSELS, Nov. 22 (AFP) — The summit of European Economic Community government leaders Thursday and Friday seems set for failure over the main item on the agenda - community reform.

The 10 member countries are apparently more divided than ever, and foreign ministers said last week that the reigning" state of confusion" left little hope of success at the London summit.

However, Britain's Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington, current chairman of the council of ministers, will work until the last minute in search on a joint policy text, and has stressed members' commitment to agree on reform by the end of the year.

The need for reform was agreed on May 30 last year - before Greece joined the community - when the nine members approved a three-year reduction in Britain's contribution to the EEC budget.

The three items listed for reform are new community policies, the common agricultural policy and the budget.

Positions on the last two points appear to have hardened. Britain and West Germany. are arguing strongly in favor of trimming the proportion of farm spending in the budget. FOR YOUR PROJECTS WE ADVISE YOU TO USE SHUTTERING PLYWOOD FILM FACE FROM FINLAND AVAILABLE AT:

Dacca seeks resumption of IMF aid

DACCA, Nov. 22 (AP) - Bangladesh action. Second, there is a pervasive feeling officials will try to unblock the pipeline to a prime source of foreign aid this week when a special International Monetary Fund team visits here to discuss resumption of payments under a $1 billion program.

The arrival of the team from Washington Toesday, barely a week after the presidential election, is seen as a sign that the IMF wants to patch things up quickly with Bangladesh, which so far has missed twl o payments totalling about $100 million.

Observers of the economic scene here expect the negotiations to be tough going, however. First, until President Abdul Sattar finishes reorganizing his government, top officials may not be able to take decisive

The IMF and Bangladesh agreed on the three-year aid program last December, and the fund initially issued special drawing rights (bank credit) worth about $170 million. It set up quarterly payments for the fast year, and issued credits of $65 million each in January and March. Terms of the last two years are still to be negotiated , but likely will call for quarterly payments also.

The paper also said it had obtained a copy of a report for the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission by Emmanuel Morgan, a former domestie and international safeguards inspector, who listed several reasons why the 1AEA is "incapable of detecting" the diver-

Financial Roundup Riyal stays firm on dull day

By J. H. Hammond

: JEDDAH, Nov. 22 - Sunday saw little active dealing the local markets with the European bourses shut for husiness. Riyal deposit rates remained generally firm but rates quoted were deceptive since few actual deals were done.

The local exchange markets were busier, however, with short dollar rival levels elosing slightly higher at 3.4195-05 compared with opening rates of 3.4190-00. Both local dealers as well as the Bahraini based OBU'S — offshore booking units, reported some demand for the dollar. This was to be expected, given the dollar's strong closing weekend performance in New York and the European markets.

The deposit market was quieter though, mirroring the uncertainties that seems to have hit the dollar interest markets. Onemonth riyal rates opened at 6 1'2-7 percent, hut were inter quoted at 6 3/4-7 1/4 percent in Jeddab. The 1/4 percent rise is not significant by itself and is sometimes "normal" in the riyal market when a deal has been made between some institutions. The longer tenors were generally more stable at 11-11 1/2 percent for the six-month period and 11 7/8-12 3/8 percent for the one-year.

Looking back to a week ago, the one-year fixed level quoted were 13-13 1/2 percent. On the whole, then, rival deposit rates bave eased consistently through out the past week but with little of the violent daily movements that we saw occur during the past few weeks when rates would drop by 2-3 percent in one-day.

Charles favors U.S. business style

LONDON, Nnv. 22 (AP) - Prince Charles, in his first full interview since his marriage 10 Princess Diana July 29, says Britain should follow the industrial example of the United States and place more emphasis on small businesses.

In an interview with a specialist engineering magazine, extracts of whieb appeared in the Sunday Times, the prince said more small firms in this country would eliminate many of the management-union problems which continually plague British industry.

"In the United States," said Prince Charles, "the figures show that the greatest growth has been in small businesses which employ less than 100 people, rather than all the big eonglomerates which have gone downhill so rapidly." Charles, who was asked a list of 12 prepared questions on engineering and related subjects, said that British industry over the last 20 to 30 years had become "a disaster" because of the propensity of large operators.

Without actually specifying his objection to nationalized industries. Charles commented: "People no longer can function as human beings, but purely as industrial eannon fodder. I think that smallness is considerably amore beautiful than bigness, which has failed to produce the goods.

"I am in favor of something which makes people feel they bave a part to play, they are kept in touch with what the management

Commenting on the influence of Britain's trade union movement on industrial production, Charles said union "activity" would subside "if management really concentrated on the way the employees werelooked after, and dealt directly with them."

"This is another reason for doing things on a smaller scale," he said. Charles, who joked that he never contemplated studying engineering because "I just can't do maths" [mathmatics), hinted that his own children might not be conventionally educated.

"I would never try to push a child. I believe in trying to find people not necessarily within a school situation who I think are interesting and exciting and who enn explain things in a fascinating way."

Ulster Protestants plan rival protests

BELFAST, Nov. 22 (R) - Rival Protestant Organizations in Northern Ireland are to mount separate demonstrations Monday against the British government's policies for

The Ulster Defense Association (UDA) and other Protestant paramilitary groups Saturday reversed a decision not to hack a "day of action" called by Ian Paisley, the hard-line leader of the Democratic Unionist

But they rejected his plan for a 12-hour strike, marches and the closing of shops and factories. Instead they called for short and peaceful protest rallies at Belfast's big shipyard and in other towns "with a minimum of distuntion to the economy.

A UDA spokesman explained the chaoge of mind because of a need to show solidarity among Northern Ireland's 900;000-strong Protestant majority, "Hysterical and illadvisable demonstrations simply play into the hands of the terrorists," the spokesman

Polish talks begin to end campus stir

WARSAW, Nov. 22 (AP) - A government-led academic commissioo bas offered major concessions to student strike leaders in Radom, central Poland, in an effort to stem a spreading wave of protest on Poland's college campuses.

The negotiating team led by Education Minister Jerzy Nawrocki and including the parliament's chief troubleshooter, Professor Jan Szczepanski arrived in the central Polish city Saturday for key talks aimed at ending a 26-day-old protest by students at the engineering college there.

The strike leaders at the 400-student college, as well as ao undertermined number of studeots oo at least 31 otber campuses across Poland are demanding a new election for the Radom school rector, and enactment of a new academic reform law.

The law, delivered to parliament Friday by Polish premier and Communist Party leader, Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, was originally demanded by student strikers in Lodz who staged a 29-day protest earlier this year.

That strike, the longest student strike in the 15-month Polish social and labor crisis that saw the birth of the independent labor federation Solidarity, led to registration of a similar college group, the independent Students Association which has organized the current national protest.

Students on at least 21 other college and university campuses across Poland have threatened to join the protest in the past days, drawing criticism from the state-run media that their leaders are "treating it as an adven-

The protest has shuttered classrooms and laboratories in all major educational institutions in Krakow, Poland's center of higher learning, and idled thousands of students at Warsaw University, site of major student riots in March of 1968.

The wrought iron gates of the capital city's main university were festoooed with colorful red and white hanners in the nation's color, and students carried cardboard boxes outside the gates with signs by them asking for donations and cigarettes.

The official media criticism has accused the student strike leaders of trying to whip up tensions in Poland, suffering from more than a year of labor crisis and continuing shortages of food and consumer goods.

Against this backdrop, the Polish oews ageocy PAP Saturday reporting an alarming rise in the number of attacks on shopkeepers, and a sign in one expensive Warsaw clothing houtique for women said, "Don't beat us, we are not guilty."

Paisley, member of both the British and European parliaments who has threatened to make the province ungovernable, had earlier discussed the plans for Monday's action with other Protestant political leaders. Afterward they called oo Protestaots "in their thousands' to demonstrate against what is considered to be the government's failure to curb violence hy the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA), which is fighting to end

British rule. Paisley and the other politicians are also suspicious of the government's dialogue with Dublin over a proposed Anglo-Irish council and studies for greater cooperation. The political leaders said they had agreed to form united group to present plans to Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher for a devolved or local parliament in Belfast. Unionist member of parliament Jim Kilfedder said: "we have reached a momentous decision. This has brought unionists closer together than they have been for at least a couple of years." He said the group would have its first meeting Saturday on how a government could he established in the pro-

About 200 Protestants, many masked and some carrying guns, paraded in a show of strength through a Northern Ireland border village Saturday night. Journalists were taken a few hundred meters away from the border with the Irish Republic to see a small group of the marchers produce pistols at a giveo signal and raise them in the air.. Protestants have held similar marehes before but this was the first at which they had produced guns.

In a second parade Saturday night, 400 Protestants marched through Desertmartin, another village in the northwest, called for a 12-hour strike and demonstrations Monday. Protestant leaders bave threatened to set np a "third force" hecause they say police and British troops are oot providing eoough protection against the wave of killings by the Irish Republican Army (IRA).

Breaking ranks with allies

Romania backs Reagan missile offer

HILVERSUM, Netherlands, Nov. 22 (R) — Romanian President Nicolac Ceasescu, breaking ranks with his Warsaw Pact allies, said President Ronald Reagan's proposals for a mutual bao on Europeanhased medium-range missiles deserved to he considered and analyzed.

The Soviet Union and its other East European partners have publicly dismissed Reagan's offer, announced last Wednesday. as a propaganda maneuver aimed at deceiving allies and opponents.

But Ceasescu, in an interview shown oo Dutch televisinn Saturday night and pinbished Sunday by the official Romanian news agency Agerpres, said Reagan's move ranked with cartier proposals by Soviet Communist leader Leooid Brezhnev and others as an important step toward negntia-

"I think all proposals should be considered and action taken in full responsibility by all sides so as to stop the siting of new missiles and to achieve their complete removal," he said.

"President Reagan's proposals ought to he considered and analyzed, and so sbnnld President Brezhnev's proposals and the other proposals. Negotiations should be started to reach agreements acceptable to all sides, especially to ensure that no nuclear missiles of any kind are sited in Europe," Ceausescu added.

"I regard all these proposals as an important step toward removing the threat formed hy these missiles, toward the opening of negntiations to stop the stationing of new missiles and to reaching agreements on their withdrawal until they are entirely dismantled," he said.

In his interview, recorded in Bucharest for the Dutch Protestant Broadcasting Corporation, President Ceasescu said European countries, despite their social system or location, had many common interests. "But these European interests do not always tally with the interests of some of the allies, particularly if they are not situated in Europe." he said.

"In this respect — and Romania has repeatedly stressed this - I feel that the European nations must act with greater determination, must play a more active role in solving questions regarding disarmament, security and peace." Ceauseson said He said he had esteem for peace demonstrations which have taken place in Romania and the Netherlands, saying they "illustrated the concern of the people to casure peace and quiet and independence."

Ceausescu said the nations of East

Europe as well as those in the west, north and South of Europe should concentrate their efforts on overall disarmament with first place given to nuclear disarmament under international control.

Mcanwhile, 'the Soviet Union Saturday took a more conciliatory stand on Reagan's proposals on arms control in Europe, suggesting accommodations were possible if Washington "adopts a reasonable position."

The Soviet agency Novosti report, received in Paris, said it hoped that Reagan's proposals "were not his last word since they leave no place for a search for mutually acceptable solutions."

Moscow's first reaction termed the Reagan offer unacceptable and unrealistic, Saturday's Novosti commentary said that Reagan's proposals constituted "a possible turning point in the policy of the current U.S. administration.

Only negotiations will enable verification of the seriousness of U.S. intentions," the agency said. "The Soviet Union is ready to reach agreement on very considerable reductions on each side if the United States adopts a reasonable position and if NATO renounces installation of new missiles in Europe," in commented.

urged to form new coalition BANGKOK, Nov. 22 (AFP) - Singapore

Sunday urged the three main Cambodiao resistance groups to form a "bare bones" coalitioo government with former Premier Son Sann as prime mioister, authoritative sources here said.

Singapore deputy Premier Sinnathamby Rajaratnam confirmed he had put new proposals to the groups in separate meetings aimed at speeding up the formation of an anti-Vietnamese alliance. Rajaratnam, who flew in Saturday with Singapore Foreign Minister Suppiah Dhanabalan, told reporters he hoped for early replies to the proposals, which he said were worked out with Thai Foreign Minister Sithi Sawctasila.

The sources said Singapore was urging the resistance groups to seek the "simplest expression" of a new government to avoid exacerbating the deep-seated differences that have plagued their bid to unite. The project is to link the Hanoi-ousted but United Nationsrecognized Khmer Rouge government with non-Communist factions led by former Cambodian bead of State Prince Norodom Sihanouk and his onetime Premier Son Sann.

The idea began to fizzle out last mooth when Son Sann, the widely respected frontrunner to become prime minister, ruled himself out of any new political role, apparently due to dismay at heing pushed into joining the feared Khmer Rouge without winning the bulk of power.

The sources said Singapore urged the groups to scrap part of their earlier, uneasy agreement which recognized the institutions of the deposed Khmer Rouge state, one of the moves at which Soo Saon had balked. Instead, Singapore suggested the formation of a government with three or four members as a first step to speed the way for consolidating the struggle against the 150,000-200,000 Victnamese troops in Cambodia. Under the Singapore-proposed streamlining, Sihanouk would become an activist presideot of the republic, working closely with Son Sano as prime minister, Son Sano's group would also bandle the foreign ministry while the Khmer Rouge would retain control of the defense ministry.

The sources expressed serious doubt the Peking-backed Khmer Rouge would agree to the new idea which, they stressed, had been perceived as "friendly advice," not interference in Cambodia's internal affairs.

Francoists cheer coup leader, rap government

الالتين ٢٧ محرم ٢٠١٤مـ

MADRID, Nov. 22 (AP) — An estimated 300,000 Francoists shouted against Spain's government and cheered the leader of lag. February's abortive right-wing military coup Sunday in a rally marked the sixth anniversary of the death of Francisco Franco. Waving tens of thousand of Spanish flags and dressed in blue shirts of the fascist-style Falange Party, the Francoists chanted repeatedly for freedom for Lt. Col. Antonio Tejero, the civil guard officer who led the storming of parliament nine months ago in a vain bid to overthrow the civilian govern-

The civil governor's office put the crowd estimate at 275,000 in Orient Square in front of the royal palace in downtown Madrid; But an official said several thousand more were jammed ootside the square to hear shouts for a return to Françoism.

The crowd interrupted speakers several times to chant Franco's name but made no mention of his successor, King Juan Carlos, who put down the Feb. 23 coup attempt. The king was outside Madrid in his Zarzuela Palace residence during the rally. It was the sixth anniversary of his ascension of the Rally officials, emboldened by the coup attempt and a spate of rumors in recent days of another attempt, called the turnout the biggest since Franco, iron-fisted ruler of Spain for 36 years, died Nov. 20, 1975.

Police arrested more than a score of right-wing demonstrators Saturday night after clashes with riot police in four areas of the Spanish capital, lo ooe residential area, supporters of the rightists threw garbage from balconies at police and shouted insults, The rally was led by Blas Pinar, head of the New Force Party.

The ultra-right's only representative in the lower house of parliament, Pinar said Spain bad been virtually destroyed by post-Franco democracy. He called for a new caudillo (leader).

"Spain needs a captaio and a poet," he said. "Francoism lives."

Pinar made no mention, however, of the Feb. 23 coup attempt when Tejero, awaiting trial with 32 military officers and one civilian for military rehellion, led a civil guard force that held the entire lower house of parliament and cabinet hostage for 18 hours in an attempt to overthrow the government.

In a departure from his usual position of attacking parliament as a useless body of quarreling politicians, Pinar urged Francoists to make their opinioo felt at the polis. Francoists claim their voting strength, 2 percent in the 1979 elections, has shot up spectacularly since the conp attempt.

Ethiopia facing critical food shortage

Peace rally planned in Italy

Saturday.

ADDIS ABABA, Nov. 22 (AP) - The Ethiopiao government says more than five million victims of war and drought are facing "very critical" food shortages. Tesfaye Berhanu, deputy commissioner of the Relief and Rehabilitation Commission, appealed to the international community for additional assistance to prevent starvation among more than 15 percent of the population. In recent years, this Marxist country of 31 million has heeo hit by severe drought which the government says has affected 2.6 million people. Another 2.8 million Ethiopians are still displaced as a result of the 1977-78 war with Somalia over the Ogaden region and the 20-year war with Eritreans. Though one of the 10 poorest countries in the world, Ethiopia maiotains the largest army in hlack Africa - conservatively estimated at 270,000 - and has purchased more than $2.3 billion worth of arms from the Soviet Union. But it is relying on Western nations and international agencies for food assistance as well as development aid.

For the year, Tesfaye said, the European community has given Ethiopia 20,000 metric tons of wheat, West Germany 5,000 metric toos. Italy 5.000 metric tons and the Netherlands 4,000 metric tons. The Soviet Union donated 20,000 metric tons of wheat in 1980 "hut nothing this year yet," he said.

"For a population of five million, this is just not enough," Testaye said. "I think food shortages are very critical. So immediate food aid should come forward."

The relief official explained that the prospects for the next harvest io January and February "are not good" becaue of rains being too early, too late or nonexistent. In many regions, he said, it appears that existing food supplies won't last until the harvest period.
